From Day to Day

THE RIPENING.

O, vast, unyielding land of ours!
Laid low by thee, this day thou art
Young young blood surges through his
In a crude strife of powers;
Until some trailing moment when
One cry rings all true souls, and Then
Thou hast subdued "the strength of wrath and tears—
Thou hast gathered all thyself to lower slaves by power!

The nations—yes, the nations wait
Thy ripening. Shall they lift their eyes
To see thou knitt thy lines and
Single and whole and great?
Not sooner for the sound of all,
The cannonades that roar o' beach!
Knowledge and Love and Toil shall duly raise thee One.
—Wm. Gamble.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McKinstry and Miss Maud McKinstry are at present in Paris and will make brief visits to other French cities before their return.
The marriage of Miss Ida Sutherland, land, daughter of Rev. Dr. Sutherland, of Toronto, to Mr. Howard W. Leung, of Calgary, son of Colonel William Leung, of Port Hope, Ont., took place last evening.

A marriage has been arranged between Lady Ruby Miller, second daughter of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore, and Mr. Arthur Mackenzie, of the Bank of Montreal, on Saturday, September 14th.

The engagement is announced in Toronto of Miss Ethel Louise McConnell, daughter of the late John McConnell, M.P., to Mr. Lanctot Arthur Dack, manager of the Bank of Montreal, on Saturday, September 14th. The marriage will take place this month, either in Paris or in London. The bride, Miss McConnell, is a daughter of the late John McConnell, M.P., and the groom, Mr. Dack, is a son of the late John Dack, M.P.

Canadian Tribute to Victoria. A beautiful gift has been made by Canada to England in honor of the late Queen, Victoria the Good. It is in the form of handsome wrought-iron gates for the massive gateway of Buckingham Palace, the official residence of the sovereigns of England. There will be four gates in all, two facing the central opening. The design is appropriately decorated with Canadian emblems, and the gates are being very much admired by our English brethren.

"DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER"

This trial of words has become from prolonged discussion to be very familiar to British readers. It has passed into vogue as a joke and out again, and at last persistence has won the day.

The British Parliament has recently made it legal for a man to marry the sister of his deceased wife—if he so choose and prefer, keeping the old mother-in-law to finding a new one. Last year an act was passed by the British Parliament recognizing the marriage of a man with his deceased wife's sister made in Canada or any other British possession that had removed the prohibition. Before this measure became law the children of such unions, while under no disability in the colonies, were considered illegitimate in England. Its passage made the path smooth for the act which has just been placed on the statute books.

This troubled question dates back to the reign of Henry VIII, a man of many and doubtful marital experiences. The act as passed to meet Henry's whim was that the union of a man with the sister of a deceased wife was to be regarded as a marriage. The law was again brought up and made stricter though, with the intention, it is said, of repeating it in the following year.
In 1840 Lord Thornecliffe endeavored to have the Lords repeal the act, and the next year the Commons defeated a similar bill by a narrow margin. In 1847 a Royal Commission was appointed to examine the marriage law, and the result was another bill, introduced in the Commons in 1849 by Mr. Stuart Wortley. The bill passed the Commons, but did not reach its final stage. Next year it was passed. In 1860 Lord St. Germans introduced the bill in the Lords, but it was again defeated. In 1860 the Commons again introduced the bill, but the Lords remained obdurate. The measure was then introduced in varied form, a score of times, but always failed. In 1870, however, it was introduced, and this time it was carried. In 1870, even in 1870, when King Edward was in his infancy, the bill was passed. On that historic occasion the vote was 101 against 81 for. This year has seen the close of the vexed question in England. Until now, the law in Canada was as the law in England previous to the act of 1870. In 1870 Mr. Justice (and now Mr. Justice) and father of Sir Percy Fitzpatrick introduced a measure to make marriage legal with the deceased wife's sister. It was passed in 1870 by Mr. Justice and his three arguments, pro and con, were carried out, but in 1870 it was finally passed.

THREE PIONEER OF THE WEST.

Rev. Sister O'Brien, superior of the General Hospital, Sister Dandurand of St. Albert, and Sister Brant, three pioneers of the Grey Nuns order in the Northwest, left Edmonton yesterday for Montreal, where they will attend the quinquennial election of their order at the splendid old houses founded there in the 18th century by Madam d'Oyville.
Sister O'Brien came to Manitoba in 1847, the first of the trip from St. Paul to St. Boniface by ox-cart. Sister Dandurand, who is a sister of the present speaker of the House of Commons, also came out in the seventeenth century. Sister Brant, who has been devoted to the care of the sick. In the early days they knew many hardships and the health of both has been impaired by their activities. Sister Dandurand, however, or not they will return to the west, though both are naturally deeply attached to the country they have seen in every stage of its development.

THE GREY GAUNT COYOTE.

The coyote, so familiar to residents of the West, has been recently described in Otago by James Steele as a creature without a friend, as its name implies when men and animals have combined in despising the ideal thief and vagrant of the animal world. This grey, gaunt figurehead of the western world still survives, as much as the coyote of his empire as he was in the days when his ancestors looked with contemptuous admiration upon the creature where men and animals have combined in despising the ideal thief and vagrant of the animal world. DUNCAN MARSHALL, Manager.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1907.
WHY NOT ENCOURAGE HOME-BUILDING?

Would it not be in the interest of the city to further encourage the erection of dwelling houses by giving rebates of taxes on property on which houses are situated?

The principle is already admitted in our system that taxation should be no deterrent to the erection of buildings. Property taxes in the city are collected on land alone, buildings of all kinds being exempt.

Would it be well to take the practice a step further and offer an inducement to the owners of lots to erect houses thereon, by giving a small discount in taxes on all lots on which buildings are erected? The discount would not necessarily be large for its purpose would be not to reward the property owner for erecting houses but to encourage him to do so.

The ideal to which every city aspires is to become a city of comfortable homes. Manufactures, the desirable, mercantile establishments are desirable, brick trade in all lines is desirable, but not ends in themselves, but as means to the end that there may be a community of people housed in comfortable and attractive homes. This is really the basis of the whole industrial and commercial machinery. Men do not live their time, their energy, in a sense their lives, that they may manage large factories and stores, dig sewers and work in shops purely for the fun of the thing.

Man and sacrifice is a motive the worthy motive of providing comfortable homes for themselves and their families. The establishment of comfortable homes is as ideal to which consciously or unconsciously this every city is working. Would it not be well to give a further inducement to encourage to those who are trying to fulfill this purpose by erecting houses for themselves or for others? In the twentieth century of civilization it surely is a poor compliment either to the judgment or to the spirit of humanity that people are inclined to erect dwellings of large cities like rabbits in a warren, frequently under conditions that cannot be other than unsanitary, usually under conditions that deny sunlight, fresh air and that touch with nature which the poorest family may have living in a detached house however humble on a plot of ground which they may cultivate and ornament. Edmonton is destined to become a large city and unless means are adopted here other than have been adopted elsewhere the results here in a few years will be what they now are in the congested districts of the great centers of population. To permit that would be to throw away the future of the city and to attempt no improvement on the unsatisfactory results of the common practice. One means which could at least tend to the better and better order of things is to encourage the erection of comfortable dwellings. It will be argued that this would be a radical departure from the ordinary custom. Supposing so, that proves nothing. Every good movement was one day a radical departure.

Edmonton has not hesitated to make departures in the past and has not suffered thereby. We established a commission system of municipal government when that system was hardly yet in an experimental stage, and our experience has warranted the innovation. We adopted the policy of municipal ownership and have carried it to a degree far beyond the ordinary and not to our loss. Edmonton has not and should not have any exaggerated reverence for precedent and usage. If a project appeared good the taxpayers have not hesitated to adopt it regardless of precedent. Why not the one under consideration if it is considered in the general interest of the city?

It will also be supposed that the rebate in taxes would not be large enough to effect materially the amount of a property owner's taxes and thus would fail to encourage building. The rebate should be large enough to effect such inducement. Nor would this require any abnormal rate. At present a discount of ten per cent. is given on taxes paid before a certain date. Suppose this rebate were limited to taxes on residence property, business and income taxes. The city would get more taxes and the business owner would get the discount, as against the man who holds his lot vacant and useless. This should be a very important announcement to erect homes on such land.

But the result of the discount would be far in excess of the financial advantage offered. The exemption of buildings from taxation has induced buildings in the city far in excess of actual financial encouragement thus given. The exemption not only has rewarded the property owner against increased taxes as the result of his enterprise but it changed his status in the community. Instead of being regarded as a man who had no property into use he was recognized as a man who had property in use. This moral incentive is often overlooked if not secured, but it is an incentive none the less. Instead of treating the builder as an offender we treat him as a benefactor. The result is to awaken the pride of the individual in the improvement of his property. A similar result might surely be expected to come from further acknowledgment of the benefit he confers on the community.

The result of this discount would be of course to draw a line between property which is being used and that which is being held in idleness. And why should such line not be drawn? If a lot remains vacant because the owner cannot afford to build, the prospect of discount will be a very substantial assistance in his efforts to get a house on the property. If he is merely holding the land in anticipation of making a large profit on what reason is this that he should be allowed to share in any advantages of taxation?

MONEY TIMES COMMENTS ENTERPRISE

Under the heading "Edmonton's Example," the Money Times comments upon the proposal to send a representative of this city to the United States with a view to securing industrial concerns for Edmonton. It also strongly commends the laudable attempt to induce the advantages of a city. The Times says—

"Edmonton is considering the question of sending a mission to represent the city on a trip through the United States. His battle-cry will be 'Edmonton First.' His mission, to the main industries of the Western continent. A welcome sign of enterprise is this. There is keen competition in Canada for capital and commerce. The rivalry between up-to-date municipalities has a fascination for the onlooker. A town may possess a wealth of natural resources but they will be overlooked by the man who could, and would, invest in them, unless they are advertised."

"Within recent years the literature of our boards of trade and municipal public departments has been of an interesting and interesting character. Each town displays its 'good things' through the medium of business picture books."

"There has been expressed sometimes, a doubt as to whether the results pay for the trouble and expense involved. This is a legitimate question. If your city is worth advertising, it is worth advertising well. Results may not be forthcoming immediately. But it is well to know that upon the desk of the manufacturer and the investor exists a business-like exposition of your city's attractions."

HIGHLY APPROPRIATE. It may have been purely a coincidence that the president of the Canadian Northern toured Nova Scotia at the same time that Mr. Borden's party was visiting and touring the cities by the sea. But it serves to recall that the relationship between Mr. Mackenzie and the lieutenant of Mr. Borden has not always been one of physical proximity alone. On the former tour of the Conservative "leader" through this promising land the energetic promoters of the new railway were among the unseen but potent forces in the background. Who was it indicated to the lieutenant where the new road was to run, and therefore where the "best" that was going could be found? None less than the junior partner in the firm of Mackenzie & Mann. And when the adventurers were short of funds and could not pay for the land, the endorsement of this firm was the meagre sign that thaved the inconvenient oddness of the banker and merchant to produce the cash. Mr. Borden's political partners owe much to Mr. Mackenzie and his business associates. Likewise Mr. Mackenzie owes to Mr. Borden and his associates their strenuous battle for the defeat of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is appropriate, if not fortunate, that their tours should be concurrent. It would be still more appropriate and perhaps no more significant if the parties were amalgamated and travelled together in close communion and upon all sides.

ON THE SIDE. Nobody labored on labor day.

The Calgary Albertan has located a rumor that a departmental store will be opened there. Next thing that city will be surprised to a pawn shop. Mr. Foster endorses Mr. Borden's "policy." He has the double advantage of gratitude and self-interest; gratitude to the "leader" who greeted the party trying to save him; self-interest swelling in admiration of the plaudits which he assisted Mr. Borden to lack together.

"The proposal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to renege Clifford Bitten as a Minister of the Crown is officially acknowledged," declares the Mail and Empire, and thence proceeds to get itself engaged. As Mr. Bitten is among the new ministers the Mail may be expected to tack again and berate Sir Wilfrid for not taking back the capable ex-minister of the interior.

No Fighting Quality. (Not Door Advocates.) Mr. Borden has tried to please all the people in counting on his platform, and has thereby made his big mistake. A leader who intends to do anything must count on offending some people, some interests, as Sir Wilfrid did in 1906. What is the use of trying to please all?

A Hot One. (St. John Sun.) So that taken altogether, and with some slight exceptions, Mr. Borden's policy and platform are worthy of all praise from Liberals even more than from Conservatives. But they certainly provide no reason for any Liberal to cast a Conservative vote. On the contrary, they might serve as an admirable recommendation for the promotion of Mr. Borden from the position of opposition to a portfolio in the present government.

Widened the Chasm. (Winnipeg Tribune.) Mr. Borden's announcement of his policy has served to accentuate the differences that exist between the two wings of his party—differences which must be swept away or compromised, before success at the polls can be expected. Surely it must have been thought that the Opposition leader, who was sufficiently pliant, general and vague to make a split in his party an impossibility. Evidently, however, it was not at that section of the Tory press that represents the radical element is grumbling at the non-commitment ultra-Conservative displayed by Mr. Borden, while the old line Tory press, of which the Montreal Gazette is the leader, comes out in frank, flat-footed opposition to the only plank in the whole platform that the radicals can cheer with any enthusiasm—the plank providing for public ownership of telephones and telegraphs.

Without considering the interests of the Conservative party, it must be admitted that it is regrettable that the Opposition cannot come to some agreement with itself that will give it unity and strength for a united and effective Opposition is scarcely less essential to good government than a strong and honest Cabinet.

This split in the ranks of the Opposition, which has been made so marked by Mr. Borden's presentation of his platform, is perhaps the most convincing proof that has been offered of the fealty of those Conservative newspapers who are responsible for the calling off of the national convention, which was to have been held for the purpose of binding the party together and framing a policy on which all elements could agree.

THE LEGISLATORS WON AND LOST

Calgary Took Afternoon Game 3-2—Legislators Took Evening Game 2-1.

Two games in the first series with Calgary were played yesterday, the Legislators losing the afternoon game, 3-2, and winning the evening game, 2-1.

Kid McCall and McCalland opposed each other in the afternoon, and McCalland got away with the game for four hits. The Legislators pounded the ball hard, but it had the expected faculty of landing in a mitt of a fielder, Chandler and Dyke completed their extra base hits in the eighth for the runs required to win. The Legislators scored their runs in the fourth on three nice singles.

Ericksen and Grimes were the opposing article in the evening game, which started at 5:30 o'clock, and went the full nine innings.

There was little to choose between the work of the two. Calgary scored their run in the first inning on a hit, a sacrifice and another error.

Calgary looked dangerous in the fifth. Russell grounded to Grimes and best hit out. Sullivan forced him at second with a bunt. Chandler's singled, Sullivan going to third, but Rodgers' error, McCall and McCalland fouled out.

In the seventh Russell singled and Sullivan sacrificed him. Chandler lined one out to centre, which Baker got after a hard run. Sullivan, to the left, but Russell was caught at the plate.

The Legislators scored in the fourth and the ninth. Lusk led off in the fourth with a single. He was first at second by Alexander's hit to McCalland.

Russell went out on a hit in the fifth. Alexander going to second and scoring on Erickson's single. Wheeler singled, but Harper grounded to Chandler and Erickson was forced. Russell made first hit in the sixth on a hot throw by Chandler. Ford singled and Erickson's hit to left field scored Blix.

Then there will be five more on this line, which will contain be completed this fall.

The fifty miles of work on the line from Macleod to Blairmore is progressing favorably and will be finished early in the fall. The exchange at Blairmore has now in operation, having been taken over from a private company and standardized.

When the present series of program is completed, the public works department of Alberta will have built in the neighborhood of 100 miles of long distance telephone lines that have been erected in this province by the provincial government.

BOY CARRIED UP BY GUY ROPE

At Balloon. Thousands of People Watch His Thrilling Rescue.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 3.—There was a wild scene among the thousands of people here at the Labor Day celebration. Miss Mabel Devereux was making an ascension, when William Reiffing, a twelve year old lad, got caught in the guy rope and was carried about seventy feet above the ground. The rope swung him over the branch of a towering tree, and he clutched the branch and swung back and forth until he mastered strength enough to wrap his limbs about the branches. Four men climbed the tree and threw a rope around around his body. The boy dropped from the branch and fell twenty feet with the noise about him. The rope caught on a strong line and Reiffing was lowered to the ground unhurt.

CITY ROUTE OF G. T. P.

The plans for the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific through Bonanza have been filed in the Dominion lands office. These were prepared by Chief Engineer Kellner and approved by the railway commission. The route is a double track and has a 32 foot right of way. It starts at the intersection with the C. N. R. and runs nearly parallel, skirting the north side of Queen's avenue school lot between First and McEwen, then southerly cutting off the corner of the St. James hotel, to McEwen, and along that avenue down to Twenty-first street, where it crosses the C. N. R. and runs down, joining the main line in what is known as the Huguenot estate. The right of way now runs through the grounds of the Queen's Avenue school, and will also run through the grounds of the St. James hotel.

GASOLINE THRESHER.

A gasoline thrasher on First street has attracted considerable attention. It is owned by C. N. Hough, of Independence, who purchased it from the International Harvesting Company. Those farmers who inspected it were at first of the opinion it was a weak affair, but they changed their minds on this point after a closer inspection. It is claimed the thrasher will thresh 100 bushels of wheat in one hour, and will run this much. It is a horse power and cost about $1,000.

FLOUR JUMPS

20 CENTS PER 100

Advance in Price Due to Actual Increase in Value of Wheat

The big milling companies of the country have advanced the wholesale price of flour 20 cents per bag. The advance affects the whole Dominion. It is ascribed to the actual advance in the value of wheat, and to the alleged poor crop in the West as well as to increased export demand.

This news was confirmed this morning by the Alberta Milling Co., wholesalers and jobbers will likewise raise their prices in the retail trade in view of the bulk sale of the market.

The wholesale price of flour is now $2.40 per hundred, where before the advance it was $2.20.

GOOD ADVERTISING SCHEME.

An original plan has been devised of advertising Alberta in connection with the exhibit which is being made in the eastern cities. A most picturesque has been printed containing on the one side an illustration of the exhibit. It is a very creditable affair, and will open the eyes of the easterners to the possibilities of the western provinces. Seated inside the railway is Secretary Peterson, of the Calgary board of trade, who has charge of the exhibit, and John Peterson, of Castain, who accompanies him.

On the face side of the card is printed the following: Dear Folks—Have just seen the Alberta Government exhibit at the fair. Say! they must have a great province. What goes as high as 40 bushels to the acre and from 20 to 40 is common. (That yield from 40 to 60 bushels, and later from 20 to 40 is common. You should see the grand display of native and foreign grains, and also clovers and alfalfa. Vegetables do well there. The climate is ideal for health. Coal is found in all parts of the province. Coal oil and natural gas are also found there. If you are interested, write to the Dominion Lands Office, Ottawa, or the secretary of any Alberta board of trade for literature.

With best regards from your sister, Emily.
